August 2011 IKO-Matsushima Organisation from Hanshi Taylor's Branch

The annual New South Wales Country Championships, held in Griffith was once again a great success, with a combine number of fighters being over 180. As usual the day started with the Non Contact events on two fighting areas after which the Full Contact come down to one area. As always the fighting was of very high quality and with fighters coming from three states, the atmosphere was huge. The tournament was well supported by the local with standing room only being available if you came late. One of the unique features of the Griffith events is that Griffith is famous for great wine and no doubt most of the cars heading home a boot full of great wine obtained a very good price (mine included) however many fighters were pleasantly surprised when they, along with the trophy received wine as well... Congratulations to Sensei Cirillo on the running of another great event.

A black belt is a white belt who never gave up – Just enjoy the journey

Make it happen:

In a match, the fighter who solely "counters", and never attacks is in SERIOUS trouble! You've got to "Make it Happen", not simply "Let it Happen".

Quote of the month: Mas Oyama

"As far as possible, I want nothing more than to don my training gi and teach Karate."

Perseverance:

The following passage was found in a book on the subject of Yang Tai Chi Chuan, by John Hine. It encompasses an attitude and a revelation (a truth) that should be prevalent in the mind's of all true and serious martial artists. It goes;

"Perseverance is the most admired characteristic of the great masters in both East and West. It is what makes a master a master. When every one else has given up, you are still there, fastidiously following the principles set out so long before. Come rain or shine you are following your quest. This is the secret of success in anything. Unfortunately, people still think they can buy it, or that there is a short cut to it. Once you have set out on your journey, do not be deflected-follow the road you have chosen to its end."

Bad joke of the month :

A doctor examining a woman who had been rushed to the Emergency Room, took the husband aside, saying said, 'I don't like the looks of your wife at all.' 'Me neither doc,' said the husband. 'But she's a great cook and good with the kids.'

Work like an animal: PENGUIN

Sometimes it's important to stand out in the crowd, and when your crowd is as huge as a penguin colony, it's vital. "Penguin parents take it in turns to look after the egg and chick, so that the other can go off and find food," says animal behaviour expert Jonathan Wright. "When they return, each has a very specific individual call so they can find their way back among the thousands and thousands of other penguins." This is a modern family, where childcare is shared (they even have crèches for their chicks), and where both parents are equally good at going off to work. Penguins, therefore, have achieved an excellent level of work/life balance. Childcare is mixed with having some fun and they simply love their work. The day job of being underwater foraging for food is where a penguin comes into its own, swimming with a skill and élan you simply wouldn't guess from seeing the same bird on land. A penguin is the very essence of looks being deceptive. Like the chap who lives down the street, who has no flash car, no bling watch. You just see him with his family, taking his kids to the park, bringing the shopping in from the car, dressed in a way indistinguishable from thousands of others. But see him at work and he's jaw-droopingly, unbelievably brilliant at what he does. And he loves it. In many ways it would be a better world if we all unleashed our inner penguin. What Penguins can teach us: The best employees aren't necessarily the ones who shout the loudest about their achievements. Check for penguins in your business - and hold on to them.
